AMUSEMENTS

MANY C. CHAPLINS AT EMPRESS TONIGHT

Charlie Chaplin contest at the Empress comes tonight.

If Charlie Chaplin can make you laugh till your sides are sore, what will a dozen Charlies do? That is the question that confronts the people of Phoenix for the next three nights, when a dozen boys will do their best to imitate the funniest man in the world.

The boys are working hard for the cash prizes offered them and it will surely be the funniest thing that ever happened at the Empress, which is now known as the home of the best comedies.

The boys will appear just once each evening, at the end of the first show. There is also an excellent program of pictures, consisting of a three-part Lubin drama, "The Darkness Before Dawn," featuring the well known artist Ethel Clayton, an Essanay cartoon comedy "Dreamy Dud Resolves Not to Smoke" and another good single reel. You will regret it if you miss this.

LEE HARRISON BRINGS HIS ROSE BUDS HERE

They are here in all their glory. Whose here in all their glory? Why who else could it be, but the Lee Harrison's Company of Southern Rose Buds.

They arrived yesterday, all ready for the first stint at the Coliseum, the home of good clean musical comedy in Phoenix. The company is a large one, and if superficial appearances is a criterion, of the brand of show they will put on, will be as good as the ordinary and better than the average.

The name plastered onto the first show is rather deceiving, and smacks of dramatic rather than musical comedy, but reports from the last stop of the company, have it that the show is a hummer, and dog's sound or look a bit like its highly alluring and also highly colored name. It goes like this: "The New Boy and the Dope Fiend."

Tonight Mac Wheeler and the chorus will open the show, with one of the newest and freshest songs that has been allowed to filter out of New York. Father Came Home with The Milk Man, will be the next musical number, and will be rendered by Hop Jess Button. "I'm going crazy," will after a suitable interval, filled with fun and frolic be sung by Albert Swor.

The songs all sound like good ones. Those to be sung tonight, along with their vendors are Dancing the Blues Away, by Flora Green, Malinda, sung by Nellie Harrison, Gay Paree, by Mal Wheeler, Buck Wheat Cakes by Lee Harrison himself, then comes the grand finale by the whole blamed company.

At the Lion
The Lion today has a particularly attractive program to offer its patrons. The headline attraction is a two part American drama, "By Whose Hand" with Winifred Greenwood in the lead. It is a thrilling story of love and adventure with several dramatic situations, is splendidly acted and there are some very attractive scenic effects incorporated in the production. A single reel Faldstaff comedy which is said to be a scream from start to finish is another feature that will make today's program a popular one. The story is built around one Billy Budd who travels fast and drives fast automobiles much to the sorrow of father and mother and in face the entire community. The climax occurs when Billy after being very liberal with wine for himself attempts to feed it to a flivver and said flivver rearing the mixture of wine and gasoline takes after Billy and chases him all around town. To complete the program there will be a single reel majestic drama "The Little Catamount" with Dorothy Gish in the lead.

Thos. W. Ross at the Arizona
"The Only Son" with Thos. W. Ross in the title role at the Arizona today, is one of the best pictures the Paramount program has released in some time. Mr. Ross, who played in the title role of one of America's foremost plays entitled "Checkers" is really his best in this picture.

The story is from the pen of the well known writer Winchell Smith and is filled with humor and pathos to the end. Mr. Ross is supported by an able cast which speak of the success of this picture, lovers of good pictures this is one really worth while. It will be shown for the last time tonight.

At the Lamara
No such picture as Dr. Rameau, the feature at the Lamara theater again today, has ever before been shown in Phoenix. It is a picture with the highest sort of moral purpose, yet at the same time its delineation of the steps whereby an athletic doctor is brought to see the light and recognize the existence of a supreme being is sensational in the extreme. The picture is not only artistic and purposeful, but extremely interesting, and the acting of every member of the great cast is beyond reproach. The direction of the picture must have been of an extremely high order to obtain the results that have been obtained in its reproduction. The picture will be at the Lamara all day today.

PLAIN TO BEHOLD
First Buds—I felt that the new musical comedy would be a success before the curtain was up two minutes.

Second Buds—I knew it would be a success before the curtain was up two feet.

CAMP CREEK IS THE COOLEST SPOT IN ALL MARICOPA COUNTY

Visitors All Agree No Better Camping Spot Could Be Found So Close to Phoenix — Water, Shade and Breezes Ideal.

That Camp Creek as a summering place, is soon to become a rival to Prescott, the coast and Iron Springs is very evident.

It is a great surprise to everyone who leaves the heat of Phoenix and makes the two hour journey by machine to that delightful place, to encounter the shade of spring water, and last but not least, the ever cool breezes which play up and down the gulch through which the creek runs.

Many auto parties have made the trip within the last few weeks, since the Republican called attention to this delightful cooling off place so near Phoenix. Numbers of them have returned to pack up their camp outfits and hie themselves back there to laugh at the heat. At present there are from twelve to fifteen camping parties in the gulch, most of them from Phoenix.

To get to Camp Creek from here, one goes out North Central avenue to the Country Club, thence across the Arizona canal, and out through the mountains, until Williams' ranch on the old Verde canal is reached. There water may be obtained, and a good camping place for those who are making the trip with horses is also to be found.

The road from the ranch is directly north, and is plainly marked, and no danger of being lost will be encountered. The last few miles before the creek is reached are very rough, being mostly up hill and down, with a number of very steep grades.

Just before Sears' ranch, which is on the lower creek, is reached, a long steep grade is encountered, which takes one directly into the gulch.

The road to the camping grounds and to good water, is up the gulch. The spring which supplies the creek with water is about four miles up and is extremely rough and rocky. In spite of this fact, last week a motorcycle equipped with side car and heavily loaded with camp impediments successfully made the trip to the spring without a single mishap.

Down in the bottom of the gulch, where the camping sites are to be found, the weather is very comfortable. An abundance of shade is to be found. Great sycamore and cottonwood trees are at every hand and camping beneath their spreading limbs is a welcome relief from the heat of Phoenix and the valley.

Most any kind of weather can be found on Camp Creek. By climbing one of the ever adjacent mountains, all the different kinds, sorts and varieties of aggravated and condensed heat that is usually peddled out in Arizona may be found. At the bottom of the gulch, a flannel shirt is very comfortable, at the top, and sometimes even half way up the side of the mountain, one would find shed the shirt, and look for a cool drink and a goodly sized palm leaf fan.

The water is excellent. The spring bubbles out from the side of a mountain and is as clear as a crystal. Another added advantage is that the water is soft and possesses a very pleasing taste.

One old timer who wandered into the gulch a couple of weeks ago, was given the surprise of his long and thrilling career when he settled down in camp one night, arose the next morning, waited for the usual heat to appear, and couldn't understand why it held off all that day. He was certainly dumfounded when it stayed cool all day, and he never even worked up a sweat chopping wood for his fire. Said he: "I have traveled over, under and through most of the mountains and deserts of the great and glorious state of Arizona but never before have I ever come to so wonderful a spot as Camp Creek. I can hardly realize that I am in Arizona. I'm sorry I've got the wanderlust, as I would sure like to end my days here, and be buried up on the side of that mountain there."

Although the majority of the people who have gone out there have not been as emphatic and have not stated so clearly and concisely how they would like to remain there, as the aforementioned old-timer, most of them are loud in their praises of the coolest spot in Maricopa county.
